FESTIVAL TO END TONIGHT

SUNSHINE ARRIVES TO BRIGHTEN LAST DAY.

PROGRAM IS CHANGED

Stunt Flying Planned for Late This Afternoon—Persons Here From Many Towns.

Sunshine, long expected and hoped for, at last arrived today to bless the third annual Fall Festival, under the auspices of the Maryville Chamber of Commerce, ending here tonight.

The festivities will come to a close in the last hours of today and mark a successful termination of the big event.

Although the weather conditions have cut the attendance to a considerable extent, the crowds yesterday and this afternoon were very large and tonight is expected to set a new attend-

The Brundage shows, which feature the festival this week will be at St. Joseph next week and in all probability will winter at Lake Contrary there.

A change in the program for today was announced this afternoon by D. A. Caldwell, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. The official program follows:

From 5 to 5:30 o'clock—airplane stunts over the city.

7 o'clock—Manello & Co., trapeze performers, on platform in front of Remus' store, West Third street.

8 o'clock—Manello & Co., platform on West Third street, balancing acts.

9 o'clock Howe & Co., platform on West Third street, tight wire acts.

That the Fall Festival is attracting persons from all over this and surrounding counties is shown by the fact that at one store yesterday checks were given on banks in seventeen cities and towns in the vicinity of Maryville. Persons from Barnard, Parnell, Fairfax, Ravenwood, St. Joseph, Hopkins, Creston, Wilcox, Graham, Skidmore, Bedford, Braddyville, Pickering, Burlington Junction, Conception Junction, Stanberry and Guilford were in this one particular store.

Persons were seen on the streets yesterday afternoon and last night from practically every town in Nodaway County and young and old alike joined in the frolic.

It would be impossible to even estimate to any degree of accuracy the number of visitors to Maryville this week and with but few hours of ideal weather during the six days of the festival.

It is the general concensus of opinion that last nights crowd was the largest so far this week. Every concession and show reported a good business.

The Flying Floyds made their last appearance here last night and did a few extra stunts because of this fact. They proved to be very popular with festival crowds. Tney were formerly with Ringling Bros. circus and will return to this organization within a short time.

Cliff Curran pleased a large crowd in his last appearance on the high pole near the Elks Club building. He left yesterday afternoon for Wichita Falls, Texas, and in two weeks will sail for London England, where he has an engagement at the Hippodrome.

Farm Bureau Executive Meeting Postponed

The executive meeting of the Nodaway County Farm Bureau, which was set for today to formulate plans for a membership campaign, has been postponed indefinitely, according to Ernest Wray, president of the county bureau, on account of the heavy condition of the roads.

E. L. Corbin, state organizer, Jefferson City, arrived here today for the meeting and met with a few of the executive members who were able to get into the city.

Escaped Inmate of No. 2 Is Captured

An escaped inmate of the state hospital No. 2, St. Joseph, who had been disturbing the residents in the vicinity southwest of Maryville last night, was picked up by Sheriff L. B. Campbell. He gave his name as Lyman G. Isaac and said he had been sent to the hospital from Faucett. The sheriff apprehended him about twelve miles southwest of here.

Ethel Comer Flowers today filed suit in circuit court against John W. Woods, et al., to set aside will,

ASKS AID FOR RELIEF WORK

SALVATION ARMY CAMPAIGN HERE NEXT WEEK.

QUITMAN IS OVER TOP

Is First Town In County To Raise Its Proportion of $500 Quota—Committee To Meet Tuesday.

The annual Salvation Army campaign for the subsequent year's maintainence is scheduled in the fifteen central states between the dates of October 5 and 10.

The campaign committee for Nodaway County—James Todd, W. A. Miller, George Baker, Prof. C. E. Wells and Charles McCaffrey, desire to give each and every student an opportunity to contribute to the charity work of the Salvation Army. The Army is operating in eighty-six countries and colonies of the world and speaking forty-six different languages and dialects.

Quitman has the honor of being the first town in Nodaway County to oversubscribe its quota within a short time after citizens there were notified of the coming campaign in the county.

All of the high schools in the county have been asked to co-operate in raising the $500 quota for the entire county. All students are asked to give 10 cents and the teachers $1. An announcement of this kind has already been made at the College here and a goodly sum is expected from that source.

A meeting of the committee in charge of the campaign will be held next Tuesday morning.

In the United States the organization has a multiplicity of rescue homes, hospitals, employment bureaus, relief centers and other institutions for the amelioration of distressed humanity. Sixteen major activities which are open to the citizens of each and every county throughout the nation are as follows:

General Relief Work, Evangelistic Work, Children's Homes, Missing Friends Bureau, Prison Work, Slum Settlement, Young Women's Boarding Homes, Christmas Dinners, Fresh Air Camps, Industrial Homes, Workingmen's Hotels, Work among Service Men, Training Colleges, Free Employment Bureaus, Anti-Suicide Work, Rescue Homes and Maternity Hospitals.

The citizens of Nodaway County, and this includes the students of the various schools, have always appreciated the Salvation Army as a great instrument for good in providing for the less fortunate.

The national slogan, "A Man May Be Down But He's Never Out!" is literally practiced by Salvation Army workers for a man or woman, boy or girl can never descend so low, but the Salvation Army workers are willing and do lift them up to lives of usefulness.

SAID DISASTER WOULD COME

LANSDOWNE PREDICTED WRECK OF SHIP IN STORM.

REVEALED BY OFFICER

Commander of Shenandoah Stated He Was Fearful of Thunder Storms And Line Squalls.

(Copyright 1925, International News).

Port Arthur, Tex., Oct. 3.—Prediction that the U. S. dirigible Shenandoah would collapse just as she did if it encountered such a storm as brought about its crash on September 3 was made by Commander Zachary Lansdowne of the ill-fated airship to Capt. George J. Meyers, United States navy commanding officer of the U. S. S. Patoka, navy dirigible tender for the lost Shenandoah and her sister ship, the Los Angeles.

This prediction was made to him by Lansdowne, Captain Meyers said, before the sailing of the Patoka from this port at a conference aboard the dirigible tender on August 15, a scant two weeks before the fatal crash.

"Commander Lansdowne discussed with me on more than one occasion the danger of the Shenandoah from line squalls and thunder storms, and expressed the opinion to me that the airship would collapse exactly as the Shenandoah did collapse if she encountered such a storm," Meyers said.

Wilbur Declares Navy Believes in Aircraft

Takes Indirect Slap At Col. William Mitchell At Launching of Airplane Carrier Ship, Lexington.

Quincy, Mass., Oct. 3.—The second model airplane carrier the navy has ever built, the Lexington, slid into the waters today to the plaudits of a great crowd and the declarations of high navy officials that in the construction of this great ship, the navy has furnished proof that it recognizes the value of aviation in sea-fighting.

Every blow of the hammer used in her construction, said Secretary Wilbur who made the principal address, gives protest to the unthinking declaration that the American navy is hidebound and conservatism and immovably anchored by barnacle-encrusted chains of things of the past.

The Lexington is a sister-ship of the carrier, Saratoga, that was launched last spring.

INDIAN SUMMER.

A period of mild weather or a hot spell in late September, October or November is bound to be labeled "Indian summer" by the amateur weather prophets, and every mortal practices to some degree this sort of prognostication. And just as often as Indian summer is identifed somebody wonders where the name came from and if there is any fixed date for the arrival of this summer postscript.

Indian summer is also known as St. Martin's summer. St. Martin's festival falls on November 11, and Indian summer is due about the same date, perhaps a little earlier or later, as it may happen, or even as late as early December. Late summer weather of September and the autumn days of October are not to be mistaken for Indian summer. A succession of hazy days of delicious mildness, following a spell of cold, stormy weather, constitutes the true Indian summer.

But why is this return of summer-like weather called Indian summer? A plausible derivation is seen in the old Indian custom of harvesting corn in this season. Another theory is that the Pilgrims gave it its name when they were told by the Indians that summer would return after the first spell of winter.

An interesting explanation is given in the "Notes" of Dr. Joseph Doddridge, born in 1763, a student of the folklore, traditions and history of the Indians and early settlers. He traces the origin of the name to the fact that the incursions of the savages against the white settlers, which were interrupted by the arrival of winter, were resumed during the period of warmer weather usually experienced in New England in the late autumn.

THE COST OF CRIME.

An official of the American Bankers' Association whose business is to know what he is talking about, estimates the money losses from crime in the United States during 1924 at $4,000,000,000. Adding to this the cost of police protection, courts, prisons, members of the National Crime Commission pile up a grand total of ten billion dollars. This estimate is said to be too high by some authorities but in the absence of definite statistics they admit that one figure is as good as another.

Figures so long that they look like a Pennsylvania through freight mean little by themselves. The mind has to have something to measure them by. Consider the following: The estimated crime total is greater than the entire foreign trade of the United States for the same period our imports and exports for the fiscal year of 1924 came to $7,865,422,008.

The ancient and honorable industry of farming attains the nearest approach to that ten billion listed in government statistics as "Food and Kindred Products," the total value for 1923 was around nine and a half billions. Textiles came next with $9,487,000,000. Lumber and allied industries trailed far behind with an ignominious $3,633,000,000.

Dollars are one thing and human beings another. Therefore a recapitulation of persons gainfully employed in banditry and kindred pursuits ought to be even more entertaining. The number of prisoners in different institutions throughout the country is said to be about 200,000. Our entire criminal population is estimated at 1,000,000. Then we have those aristocrats of crime who have —as the statistics so delicately put it—"unlawfully taken human life." Including professional gunmen with the winsome young girls who have shot their boy friends or murderers are put at 135,000.

If you got all our murderers together and made them live in one city that sinister municipality would have a greater population than Salt Lake City, Utah, or Nashville, Tennessee.—Nation's Business Magazine.

CONVERTED AT LAST.

Five Thousand Feet From Death

Personal Narratives of Survivors of the Wrecked Dirigible Shenandoah, Written for the Democrat-Forum and Tribune.

No. 3

By BENJAMIN O. HERETH
Aviation Machinist's Mate First-Class

"Well, I guess we're done for—" I said that to my mates on the Shenandoah. And I guess that describes as well as anything about the way I felt about it.

I don't know—people seem to think that when you feel you're going—dying—you think of your soul and your mother and others dear to you. They seem to think you get scared at the idea of going. Maybe that's true. But somehow, I didn't think any of those things. And I wasn't scared.

Somehow it just didn't seem to matter. Not that I wanted to die. No, I guess nobody does. But I seemed not to care much. I think, maybe, things happened so fast you didn't get a chance to care or feel anything.

Not So Funny.

Then, too, when it all started to happen I was fast asleep. I had just been relieved from duty at the engine I was detailed to. And I had been sleeping about thirty minutes, when I was awakened by my bed mate, rolling down on top of me. Then we both rolled off on the floor.

It was a funny thing to happen—rolling out of bed. But it didn't strike us at all funny, when we found that the reason for it all was the crazy way the ship was acting. It was nosing down almost at right angles, when we were rolled onto the floor. Then it kept zooming— first one way and then the other, making half circles. Maybe it didn't do it so often at that. But we were still sort of half asleep, and it seemed as though the ship dancing a jig any way it was minded to.

I don't know what I first thought of. But when a few moments later we heard the ship crack—I knew all right. The crackling and snapping could only mean that something had been torn wide open. Then we learned that it wasn't much—just the ship itself.

"Sort of Awful."

There must be something inside us that makes us not mind these things when they come. When you think about far away from it, I guess it does seem sort of awful. But there, right in the ship that was falling—falling faster all the time—I don't know why, but I just didn't seem to think anything much at all.

I remember saying, "Well, I guess we're done for—" And then I recall somebody else saying, "Let's get out of this—"

"Let's get out of this—" A nice thing to suggest with nothing but storm and wind outside—all around us. And still several thousand feet from terra firma—that would feel altogether too firm, when we hit it.

Then we started dropping ballasts. We were going so fast we thought that if we dropped a few gasoline tanks, we might break the speed. I remember thinking that wouldn't help much. I was sure we hadn't a chance. Falling all the time—gathering speed all the way—

A Glimmer of Hope

I didn't even try to think what I could do to save myself when we landed. You see, I didn't think we would "land." I thought we would crash and crash awfully hard unless something happened to check our speed.

Just about then it did happen. Two gondolas attached to the keil end, in which I was, tore away and sped toward the earth. Our speed was cut in half. And for the first time there was a glimmer of hope. Yet, that didn't "get a rise out of me, either." I somehow didn't seem able to feel anything. I couldn't feel happy that we had a single chance to be saved. I couldn't feel sad that we hadn't any. I don't think I believed that fate would determine the outcome. I don't think I thought anything.

I guess I was so indifferent, that at the time I couldn't have felt a pin if it was stuck in me.

In a moment we spotted the tree tops right under us. And I just said, "Well—so long—here we go—"

We brushed the tops of the trees and a lot of wreckage was torn away and some of the bottom was ripped off. We bumped over them for a half mile or so, rising and falling. Finally we came down. And let me tell you—we hit hard.

No Time for Cheers

I scrambled out somehow. And even then I didn't seem to have a single feeling. I suppose I should have felt happy, relieved, grateful to a kind God. But I was still numb. And besides there was no time for thanksgiving while our comrades, many of them, were still in the wreckage—some never to come out alive.

Those who got out first helped the others. And no sooner did we do that then we all had to turn and run. The wrecked ship didn't seem to want to stay on land, after it had rushed so rapidly to meet it and carried so many to death. It kept rising a little and drifting. More than once in the rescue work we had to duck from under it.

And I guess that's all. It isn't easy to tell about it. It is still so hazy. And I guess for me, it will always be a sort of dream experience.

Fifty Years Ago

(Taken from the Nodaway Democrat, September 30, 1875).

Our efficient deputy postmaster, O. P. Torrance, is no longer numbered among those who enjoy single blessedness, as he was united in marriage on last Sunday evening at the residence of the bride's father in this city to Mrs. Kate Fenters, daughter of Dr. J. C. Taylor.

The Maryville Dancing Club will hold its first annual reception at Union Hall in this city on this, Thursday evening, September 30. The floor managers are S. W. Briggs, and John T. Cleland; Mrs. James I. George, Mrs. Thomas Shoemaker, Sam Heyser, and Thomas Sawyers are on the committee on reception; Thomas Davis, O. M. Spalsbury, J. W. McMackin, Ed Hull, and E. P. Sampson, are the committee on introduction.

We are informed by Dr. M. R. Haekedorn, secretary, that the Nodaway County Medical Society will meet in the office of the secretary on the afternoon and evening of Wednesday, October 6. A paper will be read by Dr. Goodson.

We are glad to record the fact that E. M. Moss has again located in business in our midst, he having purchased back from the Shelton Brothers the property formerly owned and occupied by him.

The two frame buildings of Henry Thull on the east side of Main street, south of Hasting's book store, have moved away to make room for his two brick business houses to be erected at once on their site.

Peter Mergen has fitted up in fine style a new restaurant in the basement of Martin O'Rourke's business house, where he is now prepared at all hours to furnish a first class meal.

B. Hampton, a well known farmer and resident of Jackson township, raised this season on one pumpkin vine 21 pumpkins. The lightest of these weighed 18 pounds and the heaviest 44 pounds.

We are requested to announce that there will be a grand mass meeting of the citizens of Polk township at the court house in this city next Monday evening at 7 o'clock on which occasion the question of voting aid to the Q. M. & P. R. R. will be thoroughly discussed. Those opposed to voting aid are especially invited to be present.

Our county fair opened last Monday morning, the weather being pleasant and Indian summer like. The greater portion of Monday was taken up in entering stock and articles to be exhibited in the floral hall, no admission fee being charged on this day. By Tuesday noon the floral hall and art gallery presented a beautiful appearance, and the fine display was a credit to the town and county. The taste and fine arrangement of the articles in this building was due in a great measure to Mrs. H. M. Jackson, Mrs. John T. Cleland, N. W. Charles and Nat Sisson, who had matters in charge. A much greater interest seemed to have been taken this year in our fair association by our business men and town people than in former years, as many of them had articles on exhibition representing their different lines of business, and the display made by them was most beautiful.

The exhibition of thoroughbred cattle this year was very fine. A number of celebrated breeders and stock men had a portion of their choicest cattle entered. E. M. Gardner of Graham had a herd of six of his celebrated thoroughbred cattle, all of which were a beautiful red color. Henry Linville of Graham, one of our county's most noted breeders, had a herd of eight thoroughbred Shorthorns, and Sim Wright, the public spirited vice-president of the fair association, also had a herd of six of his noted cattle.

CATTLE HAVE COME BACK

OPTIMISM AFTER A 5-YEAR PERIOD OF DEFLATION.

OUTLOOK IS VERY GOOD

Better Times For Industry Is Conviction of Men Who Have Spent Their Lives in It.

(Kansas City Star).

In the opinion of producers, breeders, bankers, packers and commission men, the livestock industry, after a 5-year struggle, has come back.

From now on, it is their belief, there will be a steady improvement in conditions both within the industry itself as well as those related lines, such as land values, better methods and more stability in markets.

H. L. Jarboe, president of the Drovers National Bank at the stockyards, said today:

"I firmly believe that an actual shortage in cattle has developed. For the past five years bankers have said 'I want this cow ican paid.' The result has been the calf crop, young cows and heifers have been sold out, leaving only this year's calves and the older classes of cows. There is a general inability, in the cattle producing area, because of selling of cows in the last five years, to produce a sufficient number of cattle to meet the requirements of feeders and for pasture purposes. Today I advised three Kansas farmers to buy good, young cows. The demand for beet will keep in line with an increasing population, but production of cattle is falling down."

In No Sense a "Boom."

No one claims that the livestock industry has developed a "boom," but rather that the end of the period of adjustments, retrenchments and uncertainty has come. For the last two years sheepmen have made good money and the sheep industry is in the most prosperous condition in its history. An 18-month liquidation in an overproduced swine supply ended last February and brought a $4 March advance, and, though under the high point, present prices are high enough for good profits to farmers. Some cattle feeders have made large profits, but margins for grass fat and "short feds" were smaller, but sufficient for fair returns. The packing industry, which was nearly wrecked during the post-war period, has refinanced itself along all lines and business has been healthy enough in the last eighteen months for packers to meet interest and dividend requirements.

Breeding Cows Back to the Range.

Range conditions in all western and southwestern states are good to excellent. The Southwest started the year with a drought, but since July has had ample moisture to bring on forage crops for winter. Some of the breeding cattle brought into Kansas and Nebraska this spring from Texas, because of the poor range, have been returned. Today a 28-carload shipment of cows held in Northwest Nebraska since spring will be shipped to the home range in Texas.

Outlook Is Encouraging.

Under existing conditions it is reasonable to expect that new energy is going to develop in livestock production. Farms and ranches that have been, in banking terms, a "frozen" asset, will be in demand.

"Hardest Hit of All."

George R. Collett, president of the Kansas City Stockyards Company, in speaking last week at the Bankers' Club meeting at the Meadow Lake Club, said in part:

"After the war it seemed to those interested that the livestock industry was the hardest hit of any. This was due to heavy production during the war period and the immediate shut-off of the outlet of our meats to foreign countries. At the close of the war, which resulted in a sharp and material reduction in the value of livestock, a severe blow was dealt to the livestock producers and feeders. Many of these oldtime cattlemen and sheepmen were forced out of the business. They found it necessary to market their entire herds and abandon their ranches, the result being that large numbers of breeding stock have been marketed during the last few years which should ing the last few years which should have been left on the range. It would seem natural, therefore, to suppose that next year the depletion of the ranges will clearly show itself, and until these ranches can be restocked it seems apparent there will be decreased receipts on the principal markets. This in time will mean higher prices and an increased demand for breeding stock of all kinds.

"The ranches that have been in the hands of banks are gradually working back into the hands of men who are able to restock them. A number of large ranches that have been used for years in livestock production have been broken up within the past two years and are now considered farm lands, but our experience is that all kinds of farming, with the exception of cotton farming, increases production of livestock per acre."

ASKS CHANGE IN TESTIMONY

GERMAN DIRIGIBLE EXPERT IN DEMAND TO COURT

NEW TURN IN INQUIRY

President's Special Commission Will Now Investigate Commercial Aviation—May Grant Aid.

Lakehurst, N. J., Oct. 3.—Capt. Antone Heinen, German dirigible expert, today demanded that the naval court of inquiry into the Shenandoah disaster either substitute or withdraw the testimony of James Work, hangar employe, wherein he is alleged to have referred to the German expert as "a liar."

When Heinen was first called before the court, he stated that he had been told that the valve changes in the Shenandoah had been opposed.

He refused to name his informant but later he testified that Work had made the statement to him the day the dirigible crashed.

Work, on the witness stand yesterday, contradicted Heinen and said that upon seeing Heinen's statements in the newspapers he had said to his wife, "This man is a liar and knows he is a liar because I explained to him this morning that the valves had been removed upon the recommendation of the personnel of the dirigible crew."

Washington, Oct. 3.—The President's air board turns next to commercial aviation.

Except for a brief resumption next week of the military phase of its inquiry, the investigators plan to devote practically all of their remaining work to hearing representatives of aircraft industries and officials of companies planning to honeycomb the nation with a network of passenger and freight air lines.

The new aspect of the inquiry is regarded by many board members as the most important work they were called upon to do by President Coolidge. There will be a general effort to determine upon some plan to provide federal aid to air transportation as years ago the government assisted the infant railroad industry.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—Grains suffered further recessions in today's session on the Board of Trade.

December and May wheat slid to new low records on the crop. In the fore part of the session, better class of buying was in evidence.

Corn, like the leading cereal, closed lower. Buyers took the selling side when wheat turned weak.

Oats were dull as usual with price changes insignificant.

Commission house buying of lard boosted the provisions market.

Exchange Records Broken.

New York, Oct. 3.—All records for trading on the stock exchange since 1906 for the two-hour Saturday session were broken today when total sales reached 1,274,400 shares.

This is only the twenty-sixth time in the entire history of stock exchange that Saturday sales have passed the million mark. The previous high mark for Saturday trading was established August 18, 1906, when sales totaled 1,603,043.

CLEARMONT.

We are glad to report Mrs. John Myres who has been very sick for some time very much improved.

The W. C. T. U. ladies held their regular meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George McDermitt, Friday September 25th. The attendance was good. The program was well prepared, the main topics were on Law enforcement; a sketch of the life of Frances Willard; "America's Uncrowned Queen," given by Mrs. Edith Linebaugh was especially of interest. The closing number was an impromptu talk by Mrs. Jamison who was a pupil of Frances Willard in the Northwestern University, Chicago. This was a real treat; Mrs. Jamison was able to give us real first hand genims of thought from this great leader.

Rev. Harman left Wednesday for Conference which meets at Tarkio. Mrs. Harman will go Saturday. Several others think ot going for the Sunday service. The vote for the uniting of the M. E., and the South M. E. Churches will be taken Friday.

The mock radio program put on at the school house under the auspices of the Epworth League Tuesday night was well worth the price; the home-made candy was of the best; the attendance was small owing to the inclemancy of the weather.

The program given at the schoolhouse this afternoon, Thursday, by the Y. P. B. (Young Peoples Branch of the W. C. T. U.) in memory of Frances Willard was well rendered. The most impressive part of the program was the presentation of the "Life of Frances Willard," and a life sized, steel portrait of her presented to the school by the Y. P. B. and the W. C. T. U. The address by Rev. Laughlin, response and thanks in behalf of the school by Prof. Barr. The program was under the direction of Mrs. Frank Rhodes, General Secretary and Pauline Harman, local president.

The new electric light above each outside door of our school-house is a great improvement, we understand the town is to put two more between the filling station and the school-house. When this is done everyone can much more easily keep out of the mud. We need more walks too; they'll come soon.

Jess Baker's new house is beginning to have very much the appearance of a real home.

Mrs. Gladys Brown and Elmer Matocks are still adding fine improvements to their new homes.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Humphrey left Tuesday by auto for Rochester, Minn., to consult Mayo Bros., in regard to Mrs. Humphrey's health.

"Peter Pan" at the school house October 9-10, under the auspices of the Eastern Star Chapter.

NEXT WEEK IN MISSOURI HISTORY

Compiled by
The State Historical Society of Missouri, Columbia.
Floyd C. Shoemaker, Secretary.

October 4-10.

"The Missourians will go wherever their services are needed," was the answer of Colonel Thomas Hart Benton, in reply to President Van Buren's question as to whether or not Missourians could be induced to travel to Florida to aid in the war against the Seminole Indians. Benton was at that time a senator from Missouri. On October 6, 1837, his prediction was proved when at Columbia a regiment of Missouri volunteers under Colonel Richard Gentry was mustered into service for the Florida struggle.

The Seminole War grew out of the order for all Indians to move west of the Mississippi. The Seminoles of Florida and the Creeks of Georgia, refused to migrate. The latter were quickly subdued but the Seminoles in the marshes of Florida baffled the leaders of the American forces for seven years before they were finally driven out.

Fighting had been going on for more than six years when Van Buren asked Colonel Benton whether or not the Missourians would aid. In response to Benton's reply the President authorized Joel R. Poinsett, then secretary of war, to request Governor Boggs of Missouri to furnish two regiments of mounted volunteers for service in Florida.

Richard Gentry, a pioneer from Kentucky, who had had experience in Indian warfare and who had in 1832 been appointed major-general of the Missouri militia, was assigned the task of raising the troops. One regiment was raised from Boone County and the surrounding counties. Four companies of the second regiment were raised and attached to the first regiment. Among these were two companies of Delaware and Osage Indians, who were attached as spies. These troops became known as the Missouri Volunteers and Spies.

General Gentry and his regiment left Columbia on October 15 after the women of the town presented them with a silk flag which was carried through the engagements of the Missouri Volunteers and afterwards returned to Columbia. It is now in the Sailors' and Soldiers' Memorial Hall in Missouri's State Capitol. The presentation address was made by Lucy Ann Wales, preceptress of Columbia Female College, now Stephens College.

The Missouri Volunteers marched to St. Louis, arriving at Jefferson Barracks on October 20, where they took boats for New Orleans, to Jackson Barracks. Leaving New Orleans November 2, in four sail boats, they encountered a storm. Three of the boats were blown off their course and it was three weeks before they sailed into Tampa Bay. To lighten the boats, horses had to be thrown off so that when the Missouri Volunteers went into action it was on foot instead of mounted.

The Missouri regiment was attached to parts of the First, Fourth and Sixth regiments of regulars under General Zachary Taylor. With these regulars, they advanced on Lake Okeechobee, where the Seminoles had massed under four of their best leaders. The Seminoles were met December 25, 1837, and defeated. The Americans suffered casualties of one hundred thirty eight men, most of whom were Missourians. General Gentry was fatally wounded in this battle. He was buried at Jefferson Barracks, St. Louis, with two more Missouri officers. The Missouri Volunteers were returned to their homes early in 1838, as there was no further need for them after the battle of Okeechobee.

General Taylor, in his report to the War Department, criticized the action of the Missourians, saying they "fled to the baggage" when the Indians were encountered. The Missouri Legislature investigated the report and found that the Missourians had fought gallantly, even though they were ordered to advance through a swamp in which they waded knee-deep in mud. The Legislature requested both President Van Buren and the War Department to make an investigation of the report of General Taylor but the matter was tabled.

Barnard Woman Home From European Trip

Miss Blanch Stalling Says She Had Good Time But "Is Glad To Get Back Home."

(Barnard Bulletin)

Miss Blanch Stalling returned home Sunday night after a three months trip in Europe. Miss Blanch is looking a picture of health as the German beer, the salt breeze, the complete relaxation from all business or all things combined has agreed with her physically.

She reports that she had a most enjoyable trip and only wished she had the ability to picture in words what she has seen since being gone. Her time was mostly spent in Germany but she visited Paris and other places of interest in France, on the trip going to Germany where a great part of her time was spent visiting relatives and visiting points of interest on the Rhine river and other parts of Southwest Germany. She also visited the former home of her father and Berlin before crossing over to England from where she sailed for home September 15.

Miss Stalling promised that if she could find time to tell the people of the community through the columns of the Bulletin the things of interest on her trip, she would do so. The Bulletin feels that this would be of great interest to its readers.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stalling and children, Paul Stalling and Miss Messick of Bolckow went to St. Joseph Sunday where they met Miss Blanch at the Will Seidel home. They returned to Barnard Sunday night.

A TEAM IN THE MAKING

SPOOFHOUNDS SHOW PROMISE OF POWERFUL DRIVING ELEVEN

BEAT ALBANY 19 TO 0

Green Forward Wall Pleases the Two Coaches and Backfield Presents Plunging Power.

"I'm satisfied," is the short but meaningful comment of William H. Herbert, coach of the Spoofhounds, on the playing of the Maryville High School eleven yesterday in which the local Hi team defeated Albany Hi 19 to 0 in a bitterly fought contest, the first tilt on the Maryville gridiron this year. Hugh Graham, line coach, expressed himself that he was very well pleased with the Maryville line.

Albany and Maryville presented two teams yesterday, lacking experience and about equal in weight. Most of the game there was only one letter man on the Maryville line and never more than two and the showing made by the line was exceptional, considering it was the first time the boys had tasted competition. Two men who showed promise in their performances yesterday were Hall, left tackle and Nichols, left guard, and although they lack the experience of others, their showing in practices could not be ignored by the coaches who were rightly pleased with their work yesterday.

The Spoofhound eleven showed signs of nervousness in the first quarter, but were not caught fumbling the ball to the extent that Albany players must be checked up. Straight football comprised the local attack as compared to freakish formations on the part of the visitors. It was by means of end runs that Albany was able to make any gains, and were held without a single first down in the first quarter.

Ragged interference, forming slow at times, uneven charging by the line on offense, poor punting—were brought out as the defects that will have to be eliminated by the Spoofhound coaches before the next game Now that the disagreeable elements are mentioned the outstanding qualities that made a victory possible can be named as sure tackling, good generalship, a defense that could not be penetrated, and power in line plunges.

The air attack has not been developed to a great extent by the Maryville coaches, letting it go until the season progresses in favor of emphasizing fundamentals of the game.

The line held except on two occasions and the Albany backfield got away with two long end runs. Outside of this and superiority in punting the Maryville team had the edge.

However, the visitor's line put up a stubborn resistance, holding the Maryville backs to short gains, but the untiring plugging on off-tackle smashes brought the ball down the field for two touchdowns. Maryville scored in the initial, third and fourth quarters, and were starting for another with lots of endurance left when the final whistle blew. Captain Kissinger at fullback, made the sensation of the game, taking the ball on the first play of the third quarter through the line and a broken field forty yards to a touchdown. He also scored the first tally by taking the ball over from the 2-yard line.

On exchange of punts in the second quarter Albany got the advantage and on a 30 yard end run by quarterback Dill brought the ball to Maryville's 4-yard line but could not get another inch, losing the only chance they had to score. It was at this time that Godsey, Maryville end, broke through the line on an end run and threw his man for a loss, but he suffered a dislocated shoulder and may not be able to enter the next game.

The half ended Maryville 6, Albany 0.

In the fourth quarter, Alsup, Spoofhound end, intercepted a pass and ran about eighteen yards before downed. From the eighteen yard line the Maryville backs carried the ball to the Albany goal, Cockayne taking the ball over. Captain Kissinger kicked goal, making the score 19 to 0.

The Maryville backfield gives promises of developing into a threatening combination that will be hard to stop. Chuggy Smith, Bratcher, Cockayne, Kissinger, Strong and King, all getting credit for gains. The work of Cockayne and Smith on recovering punts could not be better. With improvement in the punting department the local backfield has only to form its interference faster and on line plunges, the boys know where to pick the holes.

Dill and Fee carried the brunt of the attack for the visitors and their forward passing may spell defeat for other teams later in the season.

BEARCATS ARE INCONSISTENT

NEED LOTS OF IMPROVEMENT TO BEAT PERU.

BEAT HIGHLAND 12-0

Northwest Teacher Coaches Use Nearly 25 Men in Fracas—Show Driving Power.

Using about twenty-five men throughout the fracas, Coach H. F. Lawrence's Bearcats of the Northwest State Teachers College yesterday defeated Highland College at Highland, Kan., 12 to 0.

"The Bearcats showed a lot of good football," the Bearcat mentor said this morning, "and they had lots of power at times, but for the most part they played ragged football and were inconsistent. The men were uncertain on a great many plays," he continued, "and will have to improve a great deal in order to beat Peru State Normal, Peru, Neb., next Friday."

The Bearcats were about on an equal in regard to weight with the Highlanders, but their speed and driving power worked the ball down the field time after time within scoring distance. The game was played mostly in the center of the field, Coach Lawrence said. He remarked that the Bearcats wore themselves down carrying the ball so much, being on the offensive the greater part of the time. The game was rather unusual on the part of the Bearcats as they punted only twice, Iky Eads getting off good distance on each occasion and they were well covered.

Coach Lawrence sprung a surprise when he announced the starting lineup. It was far different from what many of the Bearcat followers had expected. Here is the way they started:

The coaches have shifted Hamilton to a guard position, he having played fullback last year. Ham played consistent football, considering it was his first game in the line.

Those who started in the backfield were Search at quarter-back; Masters, fullback; Eads, left half; and Willoughby, right half.

In the third quarter Willoughby and Search were shifted. Other men who were given chances at lugging the ball were O'Banion, Miller, Vanderslice, Howell England and Chick.

A play, very seldom seen, and not used on the local gridiron for the last three seasons, was the free kick, pulled by the Bearcats. Iky Eads, standing on the Highland 40 yard line, signaled for a fair catch and then attempted a place kick, which went short just a few feet.

The Maryville team scored early in the second quarter after the ball had been lugged down to the five yard line. Here Masters went over for a touchdown and Eads failed to kick goal. The second counter came in the beginning of the fourth period. The Bearcats had worked the ball well down the field, and O'anion went around end five yards for the touchdown. Eads failed to kick goal.

The Bearcats tried five forward passes, completing two, Search to Cox for five yards; and O'Banion to Willoughby, Weinie running fifteen yards before he was brought down. Two passes were intercepted and one was incomplete.

Highland College threatened only once in the game. In the second quarter Maryville fumbled and a Highland man recovered and ran to 20-yard line. Highland then tried three forward passes, one line buck, and as a result lost a yard and possession of the ball.

Highland made three first downs, these being made by forward passes.

Repeal Primary Law for Judges

Senator Wilfley Brands Primary As Improper Method of Electing Judges.

St. Louis, Oct. 3.—Repeal of the primary law, as applying to nominations for judicial positions, was urged by former United States Senator X. P. Wilfley at the forty-third annual meeting of the Missouri Bar Association, which opened here Thursday. Wilfley is president of the association.

"The primary is an improper system for the selection of officers," Wilfley declared. "We want an independent judiciary, maintaining its independent functions and performing the high service required of it in a manner to meet the ends of justice and the demands of our active and progressive economic system."

Increase of salaries of federal judges as provided in a bill to be considered at the coming session of congress, was also urged by the speaker as "imperative duty."

Senator Wilfley spoke particularly of the current complaints of "too much law" and of the problems of law enforcement.

"Our people alternate their criticism of lawyers, legislators and courts, between complaint of too many laws and demand for more laws," he said. "President Coolidge says, 'Men do not make laws; they but discover them.'"

"We would all welcome a program of less law, if a process of elimination could be suggested that would not result in greater confusion and criticism than now exists. Legislatures are bombarded with propaganda to pass vastly more statutes than they enact."

In carrying out its functions, the government, he said, of necessity goes far in curtailing human rights, but no such curtailment will justify a man in taking the law into his own hands.

Says High Schools Not Keeping Pace

President Coolidge Sets Time for National Observance of Education Week—Nov. 16-22.

Washington, Oct. 3.—In setting aside Nov. 16-22 as American education week, President Coolidge in a proclamation declared that while in favored localities only 1, 2 or 3 persons in 1,000 between sixteen and twenty are classed as illiterate, in the contemplation of worthy achievement "we must still be mindful that full provision has not yet been made throughout the country for education of either elementary, secondary or higher grade."

"Large numbers have not been reached by the blessings of education," the proclamation read. "The efficiency of the schools in rural communities is, in general, relatively low; too often their equipment is meager, their teachers poorly prepared and their terms short.

"High schools, notwithstanding their extraordinary growth, have not kept pace with the demand for instruction; even in great cities many students are restricted to half-time attendance and the outlying district schools are frequently insufficient in number and inadequate in quality.

"In higher education, the possibility of existing institutions have been reached and it is essential that their facilities be extended or that junior colleges in considerable numbers be established."

Miss Katherine Brady of Conception Junction is the week-end guest of Miss Pauline Mahoney.
